The James Paget NHS Foundation Trust

Announced 12/03/2020 - For any trust specific enquiries please contact procurement

- Having considered the current low infection status of COVID-19 in this region against the expected spread predicted by NHSE over the coming months, the James Paget University Hospital would like to enforce a policy that all non-essential visits by representatives be curtailed with immediate effect.
- This preventative measure does not apply to those representatives that provide critical support to surgical procedures or clinics and those reps are to ensure that they apply common sense if they have been abroad and carry any symptoms associated with cold/flu like symptoms. Nor does this measure apply to those service engineers or representatives delivering key equipment or repairs to existing or planned equipment. Should the Surgical Division decide to cancel elective patients to further reduce risk to the general population then this extended policy will be updated again.
- Representatives are to ensure that they follow the JPUH Trust Representatives Policy due to the potential risks. We ask that all suppliers make full use of technology and maintain contact with the Procurement and Supplies department to ensure that no unnecessary shortages of consumables or services are felt by the population we support. Please use the Procurement@jpaget.nhs.uk email address for any questions FAO John Williams.

- All none 'business critical' supplier visits to both The University Hospitals of North Midlands NHS Trust and The Royal Wolverhampton NHS Trust have been suspended with immediate effect until further notice.

For the avoidance of doubt this suspension excludes all supplier employees that are involved with delivering critical goods and services to the Hospital sites.
